But some days later Felix arrived with Drusilla, his wife who was a Jewess, and sent for Paul and heard him speak about faith in Christ Jesus. But as he was discussing righteousness, self-control and the judgment to come, Felix became frightened and said, “Go away for the present, and when I find time I will summon you” (Acts 24:24-25 NASB1995).

Respectable Worldliness

In a world as busy as ours and as prosperous as ours, Christians must constantly guard against crowding the Lord out of their lives. We may not be drunkards, adulterers, or liars and wouldn’t be found in the company with such. But when our lives become so involved with wholesome activities that Christ is pushed aside from the center of our heart, then we are engaged in “respectable worldliness.” How often do we say, “I do not have time...?” We are too busy earning wages, enjoying ball games, or visiting friends, that we no longer have time to attend all the assemblies, study and teach the Bible, visit the sick, or restore the fallen. We mean no harm; in fact, we say we love the Lord, but our lives demonstrate a misplaced affection.

The blessings of this great nation have become a curse to the spirituality of the church. Look at ourselves. We have no time for in-depth study of the Bible, and many audiences prefer a “sermonette” during the time that is set aside for preaching. We drive many miles to attend a ball game but cannot go across town to attend a gospel meeting.

“Respectable worldliness” has given us all a “ho-hum” attitude to its own evil because it seems good. We all know the unrepentant drunkard, adulterer, or liar is going to hell, and we “Amen” the preacher who steps on their toes! But who believes a person will be lost because he worked too many hours making an “honest living” or will be condemned for attending ball games, or relaxing with family or friends?

The answer to these questions is found in the parable Jesus taught in Luke 14:16-24. The people who were forbidden to taste the great supper did not commit the overt sin. They were lost over a piece of ground, five yoke of oxen, and a new wife. The lesson is simple: Put God first! “For what is a man profited if he should gain the whole world and lose his own soul? What shall a man give in exchange for his soul?” (Mt. 16:26).
